<http://calm.cambridgeshire.gov.uk/CalmView/Record.aspx?src=CalmView.Catalog&id=K P75%2f1%2f5&pos=18> At end of burials 'on the 17th November 1824, a fire broke out on the Premises of Mr. John Hancock, Grocer, on the South Side of the Rectory Barn and immediately communicated to the Rectory premises. It burnt the Rectory Barn, Stable and Sedgehouse, adjoining each other on the East next to the Lane; also the Rectory Chaise-House, Henhouse, Woodhouse and Brewhouse, on the South-west to West; and is join'd from the Barn and Dwelling House. The Flames caught the Gable End of the Rectory House and burnt the Wall to the Chamber Ceiling and the two first spars of the Roof when they were fortunately extinguish'd. The Fire broke out between 7 and 8 in the Morning on the same Premises and very near the same spot where it broke out on the 9th September 1727 as recorded in the register of Christenings. The Cottage of John Mason, Shepherd, opposite the Rectory, was also burnt down, as it was at the former Fire. The Barn, Stable, Penthouses and Warehouse at Mr. Hancock's were entirely consum'd and the East End of the Dwelling House was burnt similar to the Rectory'. Lye

Notes for Mahala Amelia Phillips:

Notes from Paul Symonds: I wonder if Walter and Mahala went to London to marry as she was under age, she gives her age as full age which should be 21 but she is only 15 or 16 if she was baptised shortly after birth which according to the 61 census age she was. They then are in Fulbourn in 1861 which is a little odd as Walters close family had all gone from there, his mother had remarried and moved on to Essex. His only close family is his brother John who in 1861 is still in West Wrating. in 1851 he is at West Wrating which is only a couple of miles from Keddington and they obviously meet during that time and yet they don't return to that area.
